Uriel Zehavi writes Israel Brief, Mitzpe Institute's daily intelligence publication on Israeli security and Middle East affairs. An American in the middle of making aliyah to the north of Israel, he lives between there and the United States while it goes through.

TALKS

Israel Votes: What's Actually on the Ballot on 27 October

The haredi draft, the attorney general, who audits the government, and the four things Americans get wrong about an Israeli election.

The Israel Brief, Live

The daily brief delivered in a room, on whatever that morning holds. Forty minutes, then questions for as long as the room has them.

Someone Lives Here: A Month in the Ridge Towns of Judea and Samaria

Chana checks her tires with a flashlight before she drives to work on a road where a stoning can happen any day. From Rooted in Judea. The argument runs against a vocabulary and the institutions that installed it, never against the people who inherited it.

Letters Across the Table

For the Christian friend who has loved Israel from far away and has never been told what the life looks like from inside. He does not want anybody in the room to be anything other than what they already are. Not an argument.

What Your Security Committee Isn't Being Told

The diaspora threat picture as Mitzpe reads it every day, for the people who carry the responsibility. Delivered with Modi Zehavi, who directs Mitzpe's diaspora security work. Available closed-door.

CREDENTIALS

The brief. Every day since September 2025 — 200+ briefs and 30+ dossiers, each at a permanent public URL. More than 8,500 subscribers across 90+ countries and all 50 US states, read in the Knesset, in US Senate offices on both sides of the aisle, and at allied foreign ministries.

Books. Holiday From History · Rooted Truth · Rooted in Judea · Letters Across the Table · No More Alibis (13 October 2026). All from Mitzpe Press, which also publishes Alon Penzel.

"The freshest and most disruptive thinking I have seen about Israel advocacy."

David M. Weinberg, Jerusalem Post, 2 May 2026, on the dossier Two Middles.

"Zehavi's argument deserves serious attention because it explains trends that simpler narratives cannot."

David E. Bernstein, professor of constitutional law, George Mason, in The Times of Israel, 25 April 2026.

IN THE US

He is in the United States to mid-December; the route follows bookings, so a date in almost any metro is possible if it is asked for early.

5–18 October is the October 7 anniversary window; if your community has a commemoration planned, he can take a place in it.

13 October No More Alibis publishes, so there can be a book table.

27 October Israel votes; he can brief a room before and explain the result after.

5 December is Shabbat and the first day of Chanukah, the best scholar-in-residence weekend.

BOOKING

Formats. Keynote (30 minutes or longer) · Fireside interview · Moderated panel · Extended Q&A · Shabbaton scholar-in-residence · Closed-door briefing · Virtual.

The room. A lectern or a stool, a microphone, and a projector only if the talk carries slides. A table at the back for books. Travel and lodging covered by the host. Honorarium by inquiry — if budget is the obstacle, say so.

To book — speak@mitzpe.org. City and venue, dates, audience size and profile, and format.
